The Newsletter of The Southeastern Michigan Veterinary Medical Association

Volume 29 Issue 1 March 2023

OUR PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

I was glad to see so many of you at the 2023 Membership Celebration at the Townsend Hotel. It was a great night to socialize, drink, and have dinner while we recognized lifetime members, new members, council members, scholarship winners, debt reduction award winners, and more. Our speaker, Ian Falzon, told us about working with his dog, Jagger, as part of the Canada Border Services Agency's Detector Dog Service Program. Jagger was trained to find currency. He had many wonderful stories of his late partner. It was easy to see how strong of a bond they shared over such a long service together. Look for the Membership Celebration article in this newsletter for a full listing of those recognized and pictures from the event. If you have never attended, the event is free to you and a guest. We hope to see you at the celebration next year in January.

A huge thank you to Michelle Meyer for her affable leadership and enthusiasm last year as SEMVMA's president. Dr. Norm Bayne finished his SEMVMA duties and we thank him for his years of contribution to our association. We also must recognize and thank Barb Locricchio for all she does to keep SEMVMA organized and operating smoothly.

I am excited to serve as president this year. In previous years, I have been a council member working on the technician continuing education calendar and as our newsletter editor. As editor, we are ALWAYS looking to hear from our members. If you have any interesting news, cases, or questions, reach out to us! As this year's president, I look forward to working with my outstanding colleagues serving on the SEMVMA council. We have already started to work on the 2023-2024 continuing education calendar. A large effort is made to bring nationally recognized speakers to our area so that our members can have top tier educational opportunities from dynamic speakers only a short distance away. If you would like to continue to have a virtual option, let us know by reaching out to one of your council members or Barb. We are always looking for member input to make your association useful for you!

Emily Socks

The SEMVMA council has also been working toward another party. In 2017, we celebrated our 100 year anniversary by gathering at the Chapman House for cheese, wine, beer, and bourbon tasting along with a formal dinner in the outdoor courtyard. It was definitely the "Party of the Century," at least until this summer! Join us at Packard Proving Grounds on July 15, 2023 for another party to rival our last one.

I am excited for what our association will do in 2023. I am hopeful that even more of our members will become involved and engaged in our continuing education series, newsletter, social engagements, and more. I look forward to seeing you!

– Emily Socks

THE MAZUNTE PROJECT

Pierre DePorre, DVM

When Mexico outlawed the harvesting of sea turtles in 1990, several species were critically endangered. Mazunte, Oaxaca, Mexico was one of the largest centers for sea turtle harvesting and processing. The local economy was dependent on the sea turtle trade, and had to quickly pivot to ecotourism, with an emphasis on sea turtles, dolphins, and whales.

The veterinary community played a role in the transition. By 2001, sea turtles were beginning to make a comeback along the Pacific coast of Oaxaca, but a major stumbling block were the packs of feral dogs living on the beaches and surviving on turtle eggs, hatchlings, and adult sea turtles, and deterring tourism.

Marcelino Lopez Reyes, DVM of the Mexican National Sea Turtle Center in Mazunte reached out to Richard Rodger, DVM, a volunteer in the Samoa Project, a successful spay/neuter campaign in the Dominican Republic. Rich and Marcelino created the Mazunte Project, a volunteer group of DVMs and veterinary nurses, and started providing free spay/neuter and other health services to underserved villages located on or near critical turtle nesting beaches.

The project has grown since 2001 to form multiple surgical teams. The latest campaigns in November 2022 and January 2023 visited 27 villages, provided 31 days of canine and feline sterilization and anti-parasitics to over 1000 patients!

As a result of these yearly campaigns, there has been a significant improvement in the quality of life of the canine and feline populations, and few to no feral dogs now roam the beaches. The project also provides educational opportunities to many. Through spoken word and videos, the communities served are exposed to the importance of veterinary care, its role in disease prevention, and the balance of ecosystems. The project also provides valuable surgical and shelter medicine experience to veterinarians, veterinary students, and veterinary nursing students.

Michigan State University's College of Veterinary Medicine began participating in the project in 2016 with 2 veterinary students. In this campaign, MSU was represented by 4 faculty DVMs, 1 faculty LVT, 6 senior veterinary students and 2 veterinary nursing students. The campaign was very fortunate to also be joined by DVM faculty from the University of Minnesota College of Veterinary Medicine.

Recent DVM graduates from Luxemburg and The School of Veterinary Medicine at the Universidad Autonoma "Benito Juarez" de Oaxaca (UABJO) also volunteered, and received excellent instruction and experience.

Having participated in this campaign for 18 years, I have witnessed the positive impact this project has had on animals, people, and turtles; It has shown me what a like-minded group of people can accomplish.

It has evolved since 2001 from one small group of DVMs darting packs of feral dogs and performing surgeries on the beach, to 5 mobile surgical teams visiting villages along the turtle nesting beaches.

I would like to thank MVMA's Michigan Animal Health Foundation for the educational grants that they have provided to support the involvement of Michigan State University's College of Veterinary Medicine.

MSU CVM's participation and the continued support of dedicated volunteers gives me hope that the project will continue and flourish.

The Mazunte Project is a community outreach of the Palmaritoseaturtlerescue.org a 501(c) (3).
